I would be grateful if you could reiterate the following exam rule with your child:

AQA exam rules state: Sharing information about Speaking tests (verbally, online, social media etc) can create an unfair assessment and could impact on your grades in this exam. Failing to report to your teacher any assessment related information being shared may also lead to a malpractice investigation which could result in: a loss of marks for this component, a disqualification from this component or the entire qualification, a ban from sitting exams for a set period of time. AQA monitors social media and student websites.

Your child has all of the revision notes they need in their French/German books and it is vital that over the next weeks they are revising thoroughly for this element of their GCSE MFL exam, particularly the Conversation questions. There will be revision drop in sessions starting the week after the Easter holidays. If you have any questions please email me at e.power@manorceacademy.org

Thank you for your on-going support.

Regards
